In addition to my acting pursuits, I've found immense fulfillment in directing and choreographing productions across the country. With a portfolio spanning over 20 productions in regional theatres nationwide, from the vibrant stages of New York City to the scenic venues of the West Coast, I've embraced the opportunity to guide actors and shape narratives, striving to create experiences that resonate deeply with audiences. While enjoying these exciting moments, I've remained committed to nurturing talent at Farmington High School, and now Animas High School, where I've led the theatre department, witnessing firsthand how the stage can change the students and audience around us.
